

Alexandre Müller

Partner

Alexandre Müller (1972) has extensive communication and research experience. His main area of expertise is capital market communications with a focus on investor relations, capital market transactions, personalized research (financial, sector and market analysis) and media monitoring. He serves as an advisor to private and listed companies as well as clients in the financial sector (banks, asset managers).

He has a large network in the financial community and is familiar with the requirements of various market participants, including brokerage firms, corporate finance, private banking and asset management companies. He specializes in working in the healthcare (biotechnology, medical technology), financial, food and real estate industries.

He was a member of the BB Biotech and BB Medtech Management Team at Bellevue Asset Management from 2001 to 2007. During this period, he was responsible for market and financial analysis as well as investor relations. Before joining the financial industry, he worked as a consultant with Accenture in the pharmaceutical and medical products department (2000–2001). Between 1997 and 2000 he worked as Product Manager Diabetes with Novo Nordisk.

Alexandre Müller studied biology and graduated from ETH with a major in biochemistry and molecular biology. He speaks German, English, French, Portuguese and Spanish.
